WELCOME

April, 2016

Dear colleagues

After a mild if stormy winter, I would like to welcome everyone to our College Conference in the luxurious surrounding of Carton House.

The theme for this years' meeting is Human Rights and Trauma. This theme was chosen in response to the refugee crisis that has affected Europe; the conflicts in the Middle East which will hopefully not spread further and also the legislative changes in our own human rights law with the new Capacity Act.

Though we live on the periphery of Europe, events on our continent have a greater impact upon us than they had in the past. We are increasingly becoming a more multi-cultural society. We are enriched by this. Some of our patients have endured hardship and trauma before and as they journeyed to our island. Typically, such people are slow to seek help. From their life experiences they can find it difficult to trust others, especially those in authority. It can take a significant commitment in time to obtain a full history and to provide the treatment they need. The College has made the HSE aware of our concerns in this regard. This conference is an opportunity for us to highlight this issue and to learn from each other.

The conference is also about catching up with old acquaintances and friends. Where better to do this than at the College dinner on Thursday night. Let us enjoy ourselves and hopefully learn a little!

With best wishes for a most successful event.

MENTAL HEALTH AS A HUMAN RIGHTS AND EQUALITY ISSUE

MS EMILY LOGAN, CHIEF COMMISSIONER, IRISH HUMAN RIGHTS AND EQUALITY COMMISSION, DUBLIN

The Irish Human Rights and Equality Commission (IHREC) was set up in 2014 to protect and promote human rights and equality in Ireland. This role assumes a particular importance in relation to vulnerable groups, including those experiencing mental health difficulties. One of the key tasks of the Commission is to create a culture which recognizes the dignity and autonomy of each individual, where rights are respected and protected. People experiencing mental health difficulties are rights holders and these rights must be acknowledged and vindicated if we are to achieve our goal of an inclusive society for all.

PROF BRENDAN KELLY

09.50 - 10.30

DIGNITY, JUSTICE AND HUMAN RIGHTS IN PSYCHIATRY: WHERE NEXT?

PROF BRENDAN KELLY, PROFESSOR OF PSYCHIATRY, TRINITY COLLEGE DUBLIN

Issues relating to dignity, justice and human rights arise in many areas of psychiatric practice. While mental health legislation plays a key role in protecting specific rights e.g. a right to liberty, it is less effective in protecting other rights e.g. economic or social rights, and the right to treatment. This presentation explores recent legislative reform in Ireland and elsewhere, mechanisms other than law for promoting certain rights, and moving beyond rights-based discussions to the broader issue of social justice for the mentally ill and their families in Ireland.

THE ROLE OF CULTURE IN MENTAL ILLNESS

DINESH BHUGRA, PRESIDENT OF THE WORLD PSYCHIATRIC ASSOCIATION, EMERITUS PROFESSOR OF MENTAL HEALTH & CULTURAL DIVERSITY AT THE INSTITUTE OF PSYCHIATRY, PSYCHOLOGY & NEUROSCIENCE, KINGS COLLEGE LONDON

Human beings are born into cultures. It is the culture which determines how children are brought up and how individuals develop their world views. Culture can precipitate as well as perpetuate psychiatric disorders. Cultures also determine how help is sought and pathways into care. Culture bound syndromes also play a major role in modifying symptoms.

PROF DIMITRIS ANAGNOSTOPOULOS

12.00 - 12.45

A FIRST ASSESSMENT OF THE NEEDS OF YOUNG REFUGEES ARRIVING IN EUROPE: WHAT PSYCHIATRISTS NEED TO KNOW

DIMITRIS ANAGNOSTOPOULOS, ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR, UNIVERSITY OF ATHENS, GREECE

Prof Anagnostopoulos will present on the present phenomenon of migration and the impact on the mental health of young refugees. This is divergent across Europe in terms of its forms e.g. economic migration vs. refugees. Also, the risk factors are different for different populations according to age and culture and the stage of the migration process. The impact of this phenomenon on European societies and health services, which is also divergent e.g. countries and recession, and the interaction with different attitudes and policies towards refugees will be presented. The need for a European collaboration of mental health professionals and the role of psychiatrists in addressing the present challenges of migration with a humanistic, effective and preventative approach will be discussed.

S2016.1 ETHICS FOR PSYCHIATRISTS – WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW – PART 1 OF 2 AS ORGANISED BY THE HUMAN RIGHTS AND ETHICS COMMITTEE
PROF DAVID SMITH, RCSI ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF HEALTHCARE ETHICS & DR FIONA FENTON, NATIONAL DRUG TREATMENT CENTRE & BEAUMONT HOSPITAL, DUBLIN
 Dr Fenton will present “Everyday Ethics in Psychiatry” which includes the findings from the questionnaire sent to the membership of the College of Psychiatrists of Ireland about identifying what psychiatrists regard as being the important ethical issues they confront in practice.
 Prof Smith will then outline some of the core principles in medical ethics and a theoretical approach for dealing with ethical issues. Case vignettes will be presented and participants will experience how this method of case discussion can be used both to teach and to learn about ethics.

S2016.2 PSYCHOTHERAPY, COGNITIVE DEFICITS AND SCHIZOPHRENIA
DR KAPIL SHARMA, MS ANDREA NULTY, ADVANCED NURSE PRACTITIONER & DR KEN O REILLY, SENIOR CLINICAL PSYCHOLOGIST, CENTRAL MENTAL HOSPITAL AS ORGANISED BY THE FACULTY OF FORENSIC PSYCHIATRY
 It is estimated that 80% of patients with schizophrenia have cognitive impairments. These impairments can negatively influence their ability to benefit from psychotherapy and psychological interventions which are important for recovery. It is possible that certain pharmacotherapy may worsen these impairments. This session hopes to highlight some of the challenges and opportunities for mental health services to promote recovery in patients with severe mental illness.

S2016.4 PRACTISING WHAT WE PREACH: SELF-CARE & SELF-MANAGEMENT FOR PSYCHIATRISTS. EXPLORING THE INTEGRATION OF SELF-CARE AND SELF-MANAGEMENT INTO OUR LIFELONG LEARNING AND PROFESSIONAL COMPETENCE.
AS ORGANISED BY THE PROFESSIONAL COMPETENCE COMMITTEE
FACILITATOR: DR MIRIAM KENNEDY, DIRECTOR OF PROFESSIONAL COMPETENCE
PRESENTER: DR BARRY O’DONNELL, DIRECTOR, THE SCHOOL OF PSYCHOTHERAPY, ST VINCENT’S UNIVERSITY HOSPITAL, DUBLIN
 Dr Kennedy will lead this workshop and discussion around Dr O’Donnell’s presentation on “The Practitioner in the Field of the Mental”. On the principle that the field of the mental is elusive, unsettling and strange, mental health professionals need to be equipped to handle unpredictable phenomena and their effects on their person. Dr O’Donnell’s presentation will incorporate

- the psychoanalytic discussion of the implication of the clinician in their practice
- the concept of transference and its relevance for practitioners in the field of the mental
- recommendations of practical strategies to address the effects of working in the field of the mental.

S2016.7	MENTAL HEALTH COMMISSION GUIDELINES ON SECLUSION MS DEIRDRE HYLAND AND MS ROSEMARY SMYTH, MENTAL HEALTH COMMISSION The use of seclusion in approved centres is regulated by the Mental Health Commission through the statutory “Rules Governing the Use of Seclusion and Mechanical Means of Bodily Restraint”. One of the Commission’s priorities is safeguarding human rights and incorporating these principles in all their work. Provisions within the Rules encourage approved centres to focus on preventative measures that eliminate or minimise the use of restrictive interventions. The Commission monitors the usage of seclusion and restraint and has published activity data reports from 2008 to 2013. The aim of this presentation is to provide an overview of the current use of restrictive practices from a national perspective and how a sustainable programme of seclusion and restraint reduction can be achieved by using a structured framework. SECLUSION: A NECESSARY EVIL? WHAT DO PSYCHIATRISTS THINK? DR NAVROOP JOHNSON, KERRY MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES Traditionally people with mental health disorders have been a vulnerable group despite efforts by legislation to provide them with rights. Seclusion is a practice which divides professionals’ opinion on whether it’s useful or controversial. The authors surveyed a random group of psychiatrists, affiliated to the College of Psychiatrists of Ireland. Their opinions on the usefulness of seclusion in acute psychiatry and reasons behind same were ascertained. Dr Johnson will share the results.

		CHAIR: DR JOHN TOBIN
	09.30 - 10.10	ESTABLISHING EARLY INTERVENTION SERVICES FOR PSYCHOSIS IN IRELAND: HOW CAN THIS BE SUCCESSFULLY ACHIEVED?
DR PADDY POWER	DR PADDY POWER, ST PATRICK'S MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES, DUBLIN Early Intervention in Psychosis (EIP) is one of five mental health programmes set up by a joint initiative between HSE Clinical Strategy and Programmes Division and the College of Psychiatrists of Ireland. An EI working group was set up by the College to make recommendations on how EIP could be introduced into Ireland. It sought expert opinion from international leaders in the field and drew upon experience from the development of EIP services overseas in the last three decades. The groups report has now been approved by the College's Council. Implementing EIP nationally will be the next challenge.
	10.10 - 10.50	MAIN MODELS OF THE MIGRANT MENTAL HEALTH CARE – THE INTEGRATION OF IMMIGRANT PATIENTS INTO THE MENTAL HEALTH CARE SYSTEM IN GERMANY
DR MERYAM SCHOULER-OCAK	DR MERYAM SCHOULER-OCAK, ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, UNIVERSITY PSYCHIATRIC CLINIC, ST HEDWIG HOSPITAL, BERLIN, GERMANY An especially large gap in health service provision exists among refugees and asylum-seekers. Immigrants represent a very heterogeneous population with various stress factors for mental disorders. Within the mental health system, they are confronted with numerous barriers. This is reflected in limited utilisation of the psychiatric / psychotherapeutic health services. There is an urgent need for action in terms of the opening up of the mental health services, improving and simplifying routes of access and facilitating treatment options. In this talk, Dr Schouler-Ocak will give an overview and discuss the mental health care system in Germany.
10.50 - 11.10	DISCUSSION AND QUESTIONS
11.10 - 11.40	COFFEE AND POSTER EXHIBITION
11.40 - 13.00	ADHD IN ADULTS SYMPOSIUM	CHAIRS: PROF FIONA MCNICHOLAS & DR BLÁNAID GAVIN, CHAIR AND VICE CHAIR OF ADHD SIG, CPSYCHI
		AN OVERVIEW OF THE EVIDENCE FOR ADULT ADHD
DR ULRICH MÜLLER	DR ULRICH MÜLLER, CAMBRIDGESHIRE & PETERBOROUGH NHS FOUNDATION TRUST / UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE, UK Adult ADHD is a relatively recent and controversial diagnosis. Critical and unexperienced psychiatrists will buy into the concept and start managing patients when they have witnessed clinical improvement in patients under their care and when they can be convinced by the latest evidence. The latest evidence for prevalence, diagnostic validity, efficacy of pharmacological and non-pharmacological treatments, and efficiency of guideline-based management of ADHD in adults will be presented.
		SCREENING OF ADHD IN ADULT PSYCHIATRIC OUTPATIENT CLINICS IN SLIGO/LEITRIM AREA
DR DIMITRIOS ADAMIS	DR DIMITRIOS ADAMIS, MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES, SLIGO The prevalence of ADHD in the adult population has been estimated at 2.5%. We aimed to estimate the prevalence of ADHD amongst adult mental health service users in the West of Ireland. Participants completed the Adult ADHD Self-Report Scale (ASRS) and the Wender Utah Rating Scale (WURS). The results suggest a very high rate of ADHD (19.5%).

	HOW TO ASSESS AND MANAGE IDENTIFIED CASES
DR ALAN MURTAGH	DR ALAN MURTAGH, ST JOHN OF GOD HOSPITAL, DUBLIN This session will focus on the challenges in treating cases where patients have already received a diagnosis of ADHD from another service. It will look at the evaluation of symptoms, diagnosis, assessment of co-morbid conditions and selecting appropriate treatments.
	FORENSIC IMPLICATIONS OF ATTENTION DEFICIT HYPERACTIVITY DISORDER (ADHD) IN ADULTHOOD
DR MARIA ROMANOS	DR MARIA ROMANOS, ST JOHN OF GOD HOSPITAL, DUBLIN Attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD) is a condition that may be linked to poor psychosocial outcome, especially when persisting into adulthood. From the recognition that there are major dilemmas, inconsistencies and knowledge gaps currently surrounding ADHD in adulthood, this presentation will explore the existing literature practices that may be beneficial when assessing and managing ADHD cases in a forensic setting.

This session will draw on the experience of mental health services and agencies in Ireland involved to date, along with comment from other jurisdictions facing similar pressures. The key issues will be clarified, currently available resources identified and recommendation for future development highlighted. It is intended that a brief guidance document will be produced following the meeting that will assist community teams with provision of appropriate care and in advocating for further service development relevant to the needs of this vulnerable group.

S2016.10	ASSISTED DECISION MAKING (CAPACITY) LEGISLATION: PRINCIPLES, PROMISES AND PERILS DR SHAUN O'KEEFFE, CONSULTANT GERIATRICIAN, GALWAY UNIVERSITY HOSPITALS The Assisted Decision Making (Capacity) Bill brings Ireland's law into line with other countries by adopting a functional decision-specific approach to capacity. This, and the general principle of assisting decision making whenever possible, are welcome. There remains considerable uncertainty, however, about how the Bill will operate in practice and there is a risk that the specific provisions contained in the Bill will be implemented in a way that undermines the general principles.
